Important

The CONSERVATION PROJECT “IGUANA RESEARCH AND BREEDING STATION, UTILA” does not assume responsibility for the health or welfare of volunteers; neither does it assume responsibility for loss, theft or damage to their personal property. All people visiting IRBS are required to have adequate insurance to cover any emergencies that might occur. Check with your insurance company to make sure that your policy provides coverage for you when absent from your place of residence. The project gives no insurance cover whatsoever. Upon application for work on Utila every volunteer is required to sign the following declaration:

Declaration

I state herewith that I am voluntarily working at the “IGUANA RESEARCH AND BREEDING STATION, UTILA”, without payment and at my own risk and responsibility. I hereby release from any demands for compensation or legal liability: the station director, members of the Bay Islands Foundation and their co-workers as well as connecting people (volunteer’s coordinator) or volunteer agency (e.g. Original Volunteers, A pas de Loup).

Send your registration, you have two possibilities:

1. fax: +49-(0)1803 - 5518 88452 (preferred)
2. email-attachment to volo@utila-iguana.de

Please do not forget to send a copy of your health or travel insurance.

Please send the registration and payment at least 6 weeks before arrival. If we do not have your mandatory registration 4 weeks before your proposed arrival date we might give your position to a pending inquiry. Usually the volunteers fee can't be refunded, because your contribution are part of the major funding of the Iguana Station and they go straight into the operational budget of the Project.
